Your child has had a little bump to their head, they are fine and have been offered a cold compress and been comforted. They were happy to continue playing. You will have a form to sign when you collect them.

Following an accident involving the head it is recommended that you should keep an eye on your child for the next 24 hours to ensure that they do not show any of the following signs:

- Unusually sleepy or hard to wake.
- Complaining of a headache.
- Vomiting more than once.
- Difficulty seeing and focusing.
- Confusion or loss of memory.
- Fluid or blood coming from the ear or nose.
- Fits (convulsions or seizures).
- Any other abnormal behavior.

If your child does show any of these signs then medical attention should be sought.
